No-Host Luncheon

This presentation will explain why companies may want to use cut resistant gloves by sharing statistics about workplace injuries. The meeting will review the ANSI cut resistant standard that was implemented in 2016, and explain the testing and differences between the ANSI and European (EN388) standards. The proper selection and use of cut resistant gloves, as well as show samples of different types of cut resistant gloves will also be presented.

Presented By

Tony Sanseri Regional Sales Manager-WA, OR, HI

With more than 30 years of experience in the Safety Industry, Tony Sanseri has spent most of his career educating people about the proper selection and use of personal protective equipment, as well as assisted companies with the implementation of safety programs that help keep their employees safe.
